Costs incident to taking of depositions	<input type="checkbox"/> <input type="checkbox"/> <input type="checkbox"/>	Allowed Disallowed Not Applicable	Deposition costs include: reasonable fees of the deposition reporter, the notary and any other persons required to report or transcribe depositions; reasonable witness fees paid to a deponent, including expert witness deponents; reasonable fees of an interpreter when necessary to the taking of the deposition; cost of reproducing exhibits used at the deposition and made a part of the deposition transcript. "[I]f depositions are either introduced in evidence or used at trial (impeachment purposes or in successful motion for summary judgment), their costs should be taxable to the losing party. It is with the discretion of the district court to tax deposition costs if special circumstances warrant it, even though the depositions were not put in evidence or used at the trial." Templeman v. Chris Craft Corp. , 770 F.2d 245, 249 (1st. Cir. 1985), cert. denied, 474 U.S. 1021 (1985). See also, Gochis v. Allstate Insurance Co. , 162 F.R.D. 248, 251-252 (D.C. Mass. 1995).
Stenographic fees for depositions	<input type="checkbox"/> <input type="checkbox"/> <input type="checkbox"/>	Allowed Disallowed Not Applicable	Stenographic fees for depositions may be allowed only when the deposition is introduced in evidence or used at trial (impeachment purposes or in successful motion for summary judgment). Only the cost of the original deposition shall be taxed.
Fees and disbursements for certification, exemplification (demonstrative evidence) and reproduction of documents necessarily obtained for use in case	<input type="checkbox"/> <input type="checkbox"/> <input type="checkbox"/>	Allowed Disallowed Not Applicable	The following costs are allowed: copies of an exhibit attached to a document necessarily served and filed; copies of original documents filed which are served to the other parties; copies of documents admitted into evidence when the original is not available or the copy is substituted for the original at the request of opposing party; fees for original certification of proof respecting the non-existence of a document or record; notary fees incurred in notarizing a document when the cost of the document is taxable. Copies for a party's pleading files are considered a convenience to that party in preparation for trial and are not taxable absent prior Court authorization. Costs for exemplifications are recoverable pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1920(4), only upon Court order in advance or during trial, to include: summaries, computations, polls, surveys, statistical comparisons, maps, charts, diagrams, and other visual aids reasonably necessary to assist the jury or the Court in understanding the issues at trial; photographs admitted in evidence; models.
Premiums on undertakings and bonds	<input type="checkbox"/> <input type="checkbox"/> <input type="checkbox"/>	Allowed Disallowed Not Applicable	Premiums paid on undertakings, bonds, security stipulations, or substitutes therefor are taxable where required by law or court order.
